

Testing Details

I assisted with the testing of the firebase backend of our application. I would verify accounts created by Harmen's selenium automated script and I would also do edge cases by hand such as entering wrong data types into data fields in the profile data update page. I was able to test sending different fields to firebase as well as see what would happen under different user authentication scenarios. I would try to run code when signed in and not signed in to ensure that proper errors arose and the system was behaving properly. This allowed for us to cover as many scenarios as possible for our firebase back end.
